INSPIRING THE NEXT GENERATION OF WOMEN IN GOLF

This Spring, Madi Brown and Emma Mellencamp led a key outreach effort by organizing a presentation with the First Tee of Southern Colorado during their Girls High School Golf Prep Camp.

They shared their experiences as PGA Golf Management students, offering inspiration and insight to the next generation of young women in golf.

Outreach like this is essential to growing the game and helping more women see a future for themselves in the industry.

MASTERS ALUMNI ENGAGEMENT EVENT

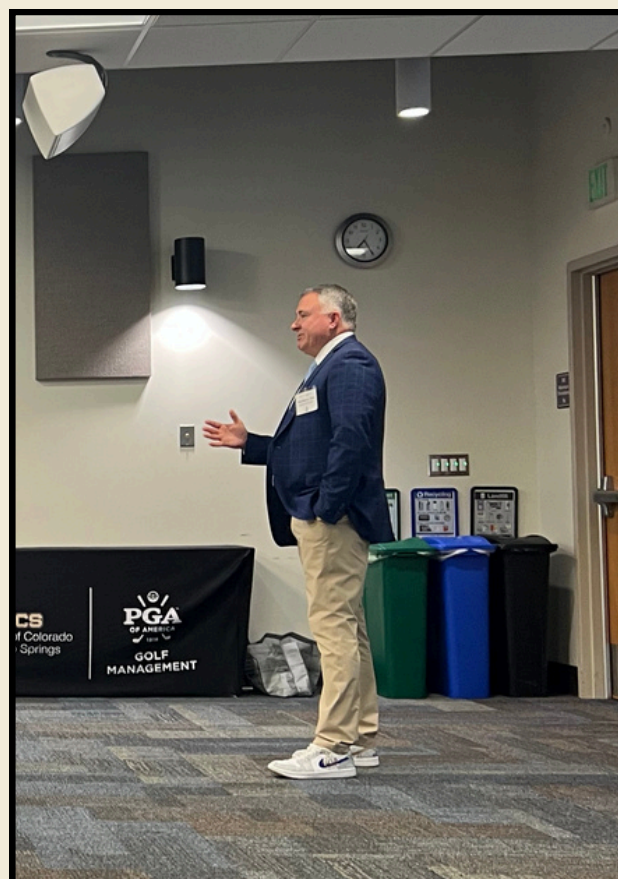

This April, Mark Bacheldor, PGA and Jon Husby, PGA attended the Masters to connect with UCCS PGA Golf Management alumni working in the golf industry. Meeting with former students at one of golf's biggest stages highlighted the strength of our alumni network and our commitment to career development. They're hoping to make this a yearly tradition!

Visit from Don Rea Jr.

On February 4th, the PGA Golf Management program at UCCS had the honor of hosting Don Rea Jr., PGA, President of the PGA of America, and Will Robins, PGA, a leading expert in golf coaching and player development. Their visit provided students with an invaluable learning experience, as they shared insights on the future of coaching, career growth in the golf industry, and the impact of PGA Coach—a game-changing platform designed to help professionals better serve their students.

Rea, a passionate advocate for PGA Professionals and their role in growing the game, spoke about the evolving landscape of the golf industry and the importance of building strong relationships with players and communities. Robins, known for his innovative coaching philosophy, engaged the students in discussions on how PGA Coach empowers professionals to deliver effective, personalized instruction.

The visit was not only an opportunity for students to learn from two of the most respected figures in golf but also a chance to gain first-hand advice on career advancement, coaching strategies, and leadership in the industry. Their message reinforced the program's commitment to preparing future PGA Professionals for success, both on and off the course.

Visit from Don Rea Jr.

Adding to the significance of the event, Tommy Aicher, Dean of the College of Business, and Jennifer Sobanet, Chancellor of the University of Colorado Colorado Springs, were in attendance. Their presence underscored the importance of the PGA Golf Management program to both the college and the university as a whole. Their support sends a strong message about UCCS's commitment to preparing future leaders in the golf industry through meaningful educational experiences and industry partnerships.

Pros Fore Clothes

This spring, the program is proud to have won the Golden Hanger Award two years in a row through the Pros Fore Clothes Golden Hanger Challenge.

As part of the celebration, Patrick White, PGA, visited the UCCS campus to speak with students about his career in the golf industry, offering valuable insight and inspiration. During his visit, he also presented the 2024 Golden Hanger Award, recognizing UCCS for last year's outstanding contribution.

The 2025 competition has officially concluded, and UCCS is now eagerly awaiting the results. This spring, students once again stepped up in a big way—collecting more than 1,000 pounds of clothing, averaging over 17 pounds per student. With another strong showing, the program hopes to secure its third consecutive win—a testament to the generosity, leadership, and commitment of the students.

PGA Show

This past January, the UCCS Program once again brought four students to the PGA Show. However, more students made the trip beyond those four. The week was full of networking opportunities, exciting new golf gear, and valuable golf industry education.

UCCS on the News

This semester, the UCCS PGA Golf Management Program had an exciting opportunity to be featured live on FOX21 News, thanks to a visit from local reporter Julie Baker. Over the course of the morning, Julie filmed five live segments right here on campus, highlighting the people, facilities, and experiences that make our program so unique.

The broadcast gave viewers across Southern Colorado a first-hand look at everything our students experience — from career-building internships to leadership opportunities and high-tech learning environments.

One of the highlights? Julie picked up a club herself and hit balls in the indoor swing lab, laughing with students and instructors while learning about the technology we use to analyze swing mechanics. Throughout the morning, Julie also interviewed several of our students, who shared their personal journeys through the program, their internship experiences at top golf resorts, and how UCCS is helping them build careers in the golf industry. Each segment spotlighted a different aspect of the program. The live segments were a great way to show the community what we're all about — and to share the passion and professionalism of our students with a wider audience.

Kelbel Cup

The Kelbel Cup Golf Tournament held at TPC Las Vegas featured strong competition and challenging conditions. The team battled throughout the event, finishing in fourth place with a score of two-under par. While not the result they aimed for, it was a solid showing and a valuable experience on a tough course.
